This is not unprecedented. A nedical student some years ago, while attending lectures at Philadelphia, signed a similar pledge. He observed to several friends after loing so that if he got drunk again he would not survive the disgrace. Sometime afterwards he attended a party given by Dr. Hodge, one of the Professors, at which wine was given, partook to excess, and on recovering his consciousness deliberately took poison and died of it. Dr. Hodge has never since given wine at his students' parties.
